MEDIA RELEASE: For Immediate Release

RE: NEW WEBSITE FOR THE CITY OF GRAND FORKS

The City of Grand Forks has a new website!

The new site is user friendly and comprehensive, it's vibrant and current. The site incorporates the new brand that was adopted by the City in March 2013 and offers more access to City information, local news and events, providing a new level of service to customers.

The site is aimed to set the stage for attracting families and retirees and to encourage growth and development in Grand Forks. Access to information such as moving here, setting up a business, investing and development in the area is easily accessible.

"Our goal is to provide the public with a user friendly and informative site, that it continually meets the needs of residents and businesses and is appealing to those looking to relocate to our area" says Mayor Brian Taylor, "we wanted something that sets us apart from other communities and I believe we have done that".

"What is very exciting is the use of "responsive design" which ensures the website works well on all kinds of devices from tablets and smart phones to desk top computers" says CAO Doug Allin. Allin also commented on the desire for the City to have the "go to" site where consistent information on events and local issues can be accessed.
